"SHOULD A MOTHER TELL?"

Perhaps never before had a woman been called upon to face a problem of such vital importance to herself and her dear ones as presented itself to Marie Bandin.

Faced with tragic responsibility of choosing between her daughter's happiness and the life of an innocent man, there comes into play the world-old primitive instinct of the mother to protect her child. Her first wild impulse is to sacrifice all for her own. Later comes a reaction. Can she stand by and permit the blood of an innocent man to be shed? So the cruel struggle rages within the mother's breast. Now her instinctive mother-passion is uppermost. Now her sense of right and justice. It is a big question. Miss Nansen has one solution for it. You may not agree with it, but you certainly want to see it.

WINS SUIT FOR INSURANCE PAID

No Defense Advanced when Mutual
Company Tries to Get Return of Money Turned over to Woman.
Final Session of Court.

November term of Court came to a close this morning with the trial of the civil suit of the Codorus and Mannheim Mutual Protection Insurance Company against Laura Osborne to recover insurance money paid the defendant for destruction of her property.

The prosecution alleged that Mrs. Osborne had misrepresented facts when she secured her insurance with the plaintiff company by saying that she was not protected in any other concern. Following her fire she was paid $1196.67 and afterward it was found that she carried other insurance. Suit was brought to secure the return of the original payment together with interest, the whole amount making a total of $1280.44. Mrs. Osborne offered no defense.

The Court appointed William Hersh Esq. and J. L. Williams Esq. to draw up resolutions on the death of the late Edward A. Weaver Esq.

J. R. Hartman and William D. Chronister were appointed school directors in Conewago Independent District for terms of six years each.

Divorce proceedings were brought by Sadie A. Fair against Reynolds E. Fair, and by James E. Riggeal against Clara A. Riggeal, desertion being charged in each instance.

C. W. Stoner Esq., S. Miley Miller, and Peter Koontz were appointed viewers to lay out a public road in Latimers and Huntingtown townships. Leo A. Baker, Mary E. Baker, and John S. Baker were discharged as executors of the estate of the late Nathaniel M. Baker.

The petition of the widow, children, and grandchildren of Jacob Zepp, late of Tyrone township, to sell real estate, was approved.

The report of viewers was confirmed in the matter of a view to vacate and supply a road in Butler township from a point in road leading from the Carlisle Road at the Martin Thomas farm to a point in the Newville Road where the Conewago Creek crosses said road.

The Court named R. E. Wible Esq. as auditor of the account of E. S. Strasbaugh, assignee of the Standard Mill Work Company, of Orrtanna; Charles E. Stahl, auditor to make distribution of the balance in the hands of the assignees of Harvey Good; and R. E. Wible Esq., auditor to make distribution of the balance in the assigned estate of Jacob G. Slonaker and wife.

NAME CANDIDATES FOR CONGRESS

Not too Early to Make Predictions for Next Election Fight. Thinks York Paper. Believe Brodbeck will Make Another Try.

The opening gun of next year's congressional campaign comes close upon the close of the recent election. The York Dispatch makes these comments: "There is expected to be a royal battle for the honors, particularly as to party nomination for congressman from the district comprising York and Adams counties.

"Three names of prospective candidates are being mentioned. It is stated with a certainty by party leaders that ex-Congressman A. R. Brodbeck, who was defeated by Congressman C. William Beales, Gettysburg, last year, will seek to again represent the district at Washington. S. Fory Laucks, general manager and treasurer of the York Safe & Lock company, is being considered by certain party leaders as the logical man for the toga.

"County Superintendent of Public Schools C. W. Stine is being urged by friends throughout the county to enter the race, and it is thought probable that he will decide to do so. He is serving his fourth term as the head of the schools in the townships and boroughs of the county.

"The primaries will be conducted the third Tuesday of next May, as provided by the amended act of 1913.

"Congressman-at-large D. F. Lafean and Congressman C. William Beales will formally begin their terms of office when congress convenes next month, although they entered upon their duties last March. Congressman Lafean will be no stranger at the national capital, as he served five terms in congress from the York-Adams district prior to the incumbency of A. R. Brodbeck, who was elected in 1912."

SCHOOL SUIT

Say Directors Divided Salaries among themselves.

In Franklin County court District Attorney Nicklas began proceedings against the directors of the Washington township school district, citing them to show cause why they should not be removed from office on the ground that they had divided the salary of the secretary and the commissions of the treasurer into five equal parts and paid one part to each director, contrary to the act of assembly. The directors are W. H. Mong, Guy A. Morgai, J. J. H. Miller, H. B. Hess and H. E. Jacobs. Judge Gillan made the writ returnable November 23. It is averred that the school directors are disqualified from holding office because of accepting remuneration which, according to their minutes, the directors voted themselves.

PRETTY AUTUMN HOME WEDDING

Pine and Flowers, with Colored
Leaves, Form Scheme of Decorations at Emmert Home. Marries Minnesota Man.

In the beautiful colonial home of Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Emmert, York Springs, their daughter, Miss Rebecca Elizabeth Emmert, was married at noon to-day to Paul M. Marshall, of Minneapolis. The Emmert home was decorated with a profusion of trailing pine, autumn leaves, and chrysanthemums.

The bride wore a gown of Georgette crepe, the skirt being accented plaited with an overdrape of Chantilly lace. The bodice was of lace and net with a girdle of soft satin. She wore a net veil trimmed with pearls, and her pearl necklace was a gift of the bridegroom. They were unattended and entered the parlor from the main staircase as Walter W. Shultz, of York, violinist, played the Lohengrin March. He was accompanied by Mrs. Harold Lucas, also of York. Both are cousins of the bride. They played before, and during the ceremony and rendered the Mendelssohn March at its close.

The ceremony took place beneath a bower of pine and autumn leaves from which was suspended a marriage bell. The service was performed by Rev. Stanley Billheimer, of Norwood, assisted by Rev. Paul Gladfelder, of York Springs. A reception followed and during the afternoon Mr. and Mrs. Marshall left by motor for a short wedding trip after which they will go to their newly furnished residence at 2601 Humbolt Avenue, South, Minneapolis, where they will be at home after December 15.

The bride attended Wilson College, Chambersburg, for three years, and then took a three years' course in music at the Sterns Conservatory, Berlin, Germany. For the past three years she has been instructor in piano music at Wesleyan College, Macon, Georgia. Mr. Marshall is a graduate of Gettysburg College where he was a member of the Phi Gamma Delta fraternity. He was formerly from Shippensburg but is now sales manager for the Shane Brothers and Wilson Company, large flour manufacturers in Minneapolis.

The wedding and reception were attended by about one hundred guests. Among the number were Mr. and Mrs. J. Elmer Musselman, Gettysburg.

WOMAN BURNED IN GAS EXPLOSION

Pen Mar Man Unable to Bring Home
Body of Relative. Met Sudden and Horrible Death when Natural Gas Took Fire.

George Lookabaugh, of Pen Mar, arrived home from Memphis, Tenn., Tuesday, where he had gone to bring back the body of his sister, the late Mrs. Anna Crawford, who was burned to death in her home there at an early hour last Saturday morning.

Mr. Lookabaugh was unable to bring along the remains of his sister for burial, as her body was in such a condition that a transportation permit could not be obtained. It was necessary to bury her quickly and her charred remains were wrapped in a sheet and buried in a local cemetery Saturday evening.

Mr. Lookabaugh learned the circumstances of the horrible tragedy. About 2 o'clock in the morning Mrs. Crawford was awakened by the fumes of natural gas, with which the city is supplied. Getting up and going to a jet she struck a match and immediately there was an explosion and the entire room became a sea of flame. She was enveloped in the fire, her night clothing caught and in a trice was burned from her body. She fell on the floor and was fatally burned by the flames before the other occupants of the house were aware of the awful catastrophe.

It is the intention later on to have the body disinterred and brought home for burial.

NEED NOT BUY THEM

Farmers Advised to Gather Forest-Tree Seeds in Fall.

It may not be necessary to buy trees to plant. They may be grown without cost, except the effort of gathering and storing the seed. The Agricultural Experiment Station at the Pennsylvania State College grows many trees from seed for planting on the college farm and for experimental and educational purposes. The Station advises farmers to collect the seed of forest trees for planting in the woodlot and along roads and drives. Many forest trees are seen in the fall, full of seed. If properly gathered and stored over winter this seed will germinate in the spring.

Some kinds of seed must be kept moist over winter; other kinds should be stored dry, like corn. The acorns, chestnuts, walnuts, hickory-nuts, beechnuts, horse-chestnuts and other large, fleshy seeds must be stratified in moist sand to keep them moist. If these seeds dry out they will lose their vitality. To keep seeds moist they should be mixed with moist sand in a box, in alternate layers. The box should be placed where it will keep cold and moist and will be protected from rats and squirrels. Freezing will not injure the seed. Seeds stored in this way will grow when planted early in the spring.

Almost all other varieties that those mentioned should be hung in bags in a barn, as house-dried seeds dry out too much to germinate.

FURTHER ACTION IN BANKRUPTCY

District Court Takes Step against Tobacco Concern which had been Forecasted. An Old Case Revived
by Present Action.

The Plantations Company, against which the First National Bank brought action last week, was adjudged a bankrupt Monday in the United States district court.

The concern, which operates tobacco properties in Porto Rico, fell into financial difficulties several years ago. Large creditors at that time were the Girard National Bank, Bank of North America, Philadelphia National Bank, and Philadelphia Warehousing Company.

In March, 1914, a compromise of 50 cents on the dollar was effected, the amounts owing being in the aggregate well over $500,000. Banks of Gettysburg and Hanover also were creditors to the extent of about $80,000. To make this settlement, nearly all the assets of the company were pledged to the large creditors mentioned, and now are held by them as collateral.

The company subsequently made poor progress, and then the warehouse company insisted upon settlement dollar for dollar, declaring certain agreements had not been lived up to by the Plantations Company. The Plantations Company filed a bill in equity in the United States court to have the warehouse company claim reduced, and then the warehouse company countered by suing for the amount of its claim.

Total unpledged assets of the Plantations Company are said to be about $5000.

The rear of the fire engine house is being remodeled in order to house the new chemical engine. The rear room has been enlarged and double doors placed on the side in order that the engine can be taken out that way instead of through the front part of the building.

The firemen are also working for the installation of a fire-alarm system. The trip-board, which was presented to them by the Eagle Fire company No. 2, of Hanover, will then be installed, and the engine house will be in direct touch by wire with every part of town. Pius Wagman is the contractor.

GREECE FRIENDLY TOWARD ENTENTE

Premier Reassures France of Sincere Benevolence.

RAPS MISLEADING REPORTS

Serbia's Main Army is Retreating Toward Montenegro Before Furious Onslaughts of Invaders.

Paris, Nov. 10.—The French government received from M. Skouloudis, head of the Greek cabinet, formal assurances of "our neutrality with the character of sincere benevolence toward the entente powers."
The communication was in the form of a telegram from the premier to Athos Komninos, Greek minister at Paris, it said.

"Please give to the president of the council the most formal assurance on my part of our firm resolution to continue our neutrality, with the character of the sincerest benevolence toward the entente powers."

"Please add that the new cabinet accepts as its own the declarations of former Premier Zaimis regarding the friendly attitude of the royal government toward the allied troops at Salonika. It is too conscious of the real interests of the country and of what it owes to the powers which are protecting Greece, to swerve from this line of conduct. It hopes that the friendly feeling of these powers for Greece will not for a moment be influenced by malicious and misleading news purposely circulated with the main object of changing the good relations that exist between the entente and Greece."

England, France and Russia are expected to protest to Greece against the presence there of German army officers. It is said that within the past forty-eight hours a number of German officers in "muff" have arrived at Athens and are fraternizing with Greek military men.

SERB ARMY RETREATS

Bulk of Defenders Retire to Montenegro Before Furious Onslaughts.

London, Nov. 10.—Shattered by their five weeks of fighting with the Austro-Germans and Bulgarians, the bulk of the enemy's forces in northern Serbia are retreating toward Montenegro.

Their course is taking them into Sanjak of Novi-Bazar, where though the Austrians are striving strenuously to cut them off, the country is broken and almost impossible to fight for regular campaigning, there are reasonable chances of their escape.

The Teutonic and Bulgar armies in northeastern Serbia are devoting themselves to clearing that section of the country of scattered Serb bands, whose guerrilla attacks are still troublesome.

The Austrians have before them an offensive campaign to complete their conquest of the northwestern portion of the Serb kingdom.

Terrific fighting continues in half a dozen different zones in Serbia. The Bulgarians claim to have inflicted heavy losses upon the Anglo-French forces south of Velez (Kopsula) and west of the Vardar valley.

Newspapers of Berlin, as quoted by the correspondent at Copenhagen of the Exchange Telegraph company say that the allies already have landed 200,000 men at Salonika.

RUMOR TEUTON-BULGAR ROW

London Hears of Clash Over Negotin and Mutinies.

London, Nov. 10.—A telegram from Bucharest states that fighting broke out between Germans and Bulgarians for possession of Negotin in northeastern Serbia, and that 100 Bulgarians were killed. This is the first report of a breach between the Teutonic allies.

Mutiny in Bulgaria

Paris, Nov. 10.—Serious mutiny has broken out in the Bulgarian army and outbreaks have occurred in many cities, it is stated in a telegram from Bucharest.

At Biogradchik a whole battalion which had refused to go to the front, was disbanded and half the soldiers were executed. At Philippolis, Kustendil and Varna there have been similar defections. Many officers as well as soldiers have been shot.

Wrecked Oil Ship Finally Sinks

Kirkwall, Scotland, Nov. 10.—The American oil tank steamship Llana, which went ashore on the Skerries, has been washed off. Her hull was pierced by the rocks in several places and as soon as she reached deep water she sank, despite efforts of several tugs to save her.

Policy Unchanged, Athens Wires

Washington, Nov. 10.—The foreign office at Athens cabled the Greek legation that "the new cabinet intends to put through the same policies in foreign politics as were maintained by the late cabinet."

Italian Ship Sunk by U-Boat

GERMANS FALL BACK ON EASTERN FRONT

Russian Onslaught Gains All Along Battle Line.

Petrograd, Nov. 10.—The Russian offensive is gaining ground along the entire eastern front, according to the official war office statement.

Field Marshal von Hindenburg's forces have proved unequal to the task of checking the furious counterattacks hurled at them by the Muscovites.

The official statement not only claims progress in the region south of Riga and in the Mltan sector, in Courland, but it announces that the Germans have been repulsed to the south of Dvinsk and all along the battle line to the Kolki region.

Minister of Agriculture Krivosheina has been relieved of his post at his own request, it is announced, for "reasons of health." Emperor Nicholas has conferred upon him the Order of Alexander Nevsky.

Germans Fighting Hard

Berlin, Nov. 10.—Field Marshal von Hindenburg's troops are still fighting heavily with the Russians on the Dvinsk front.

Announcement from the war office says the Germans by a counterattack ejected the Russians from part of a German first line position west of Dvinsk, which was captured by the Russians on November 7. In this engagement 373 Russians were captured.

General von Linsingen's troops won a success north of Kamarow, capturing 266 Russians.

WIFE, CAUGHT, KILLS SELF

Shoots Herself With Companion's Pistol When Husband Enters Room.

Shamokin, Nov. 9.—Caught by her husband with Joseph Schmickler, prominent in Shamokin society circles, Mrs. Josiah Simpson, twenty-six years old, shot herself and died in a few minutes. A coroner's jury called the case suicide.

No arrest was made. According to the husband's account, he took the motor car of Mrs. Sarah W. Kulp to Philadelphia expecting to be gone over night, but changed his mind and returned shortly after midnight. He saw a light in the house, and looking through a keyhole saw his wife with Schmickler.

He burst open the door and while he was struggling with Schmickler Mrs. Simpson grabbed Schmickler's revolver and shot herself through the heart.

Schmickler is a son of Anthony Schmickler, a hotel man.

Wilson Gives Taft a Job

KITCHENER ON WAY TO INDIA

This His Real Mission, Washington Hears.

SULTAN DEPOSED BY PEOPLE

Egypt Also Menaced by Result of Widespread German Activity, and Japanese Troops May Be Used.

Washington, Nov. 10.—Earl Kitchener's ultimate mission during his mysterious absence from the British war office, is said, according to information received here, to be India, where, according to the same information, British rule is confronted with a more serious state of unrest than has generally been known outside of British official circles.

Through the thick veil which the British censorship has thrown about the events in India and Egypt comes a statement that Nawab, Sultan Ul Mulik, the Nizam of Hyderabad, one of the most influential of the native princes and a staunch supporter of the British has been deposed by his people.

This development coming as one of the climaxes to successive reports of mutinies and unrest, many of which have been substantiated and admitted by the British government, is said to be the leading reason for Earl Kitchener's departure from England which has been shrouded with much secrecy.

It has been officially announced that the head of the British war office was on his way to the theatre of operations in the near east, which has been generally interpreted as meaning the Balkans, where the critical situation of the moment confronts the allied forces.

Information reaching the United States, however, through channels not subject to censorship is to the effect that it is well known in London among those close to the government that while Earl Kitchener may stop in the Balkans to co-ordinate the efforts of the allied forces, his ultimate destination is not only India, but Egypt, as well, where the British gateway to Asia is now menaced by the Teutonic-Bulgarian-Turk successes in the Balkans.

Coupled with repeated rumors of activities of German agents fomenting discontent among the native population of India have come reports of disaffection in Egypt also ascribed to the same sources.

Since the Turks failed to cut the Suez canal, mainly through the prompt arrival of colonial troops from New Zealand and Australia, it has been reported that agents from Constantinople and Berlin have been conducting a persistent propaganda among the natives. Some time ago Great Britain imposed the most stringent restrictions against the entry of foreigners to India and Egypt, with the announced purpose of keeping out the agents of Great Britain's enemies.

Earlier in the war the disaffection in India and Egypt was evidently of such threatening proportions that the use of Japanese troops was being suggested to take the place of native forces which had been withdrawn for the European battlefields. Competent observers point out that Japan is strategically in much better position than England to land troops in India or Egypt. If the reports of a serious situation in India are confirmed it would not cause surprise here if the proposal to use Japanese troops were revived.

RUMOR PLOT IN EGYPT

Conspiracy to "Remove" New Sultan Uncovered, Berlin Says.

SPECIAL TAX ON MUNITIONS PLANNED

Wilson's Scheme to Raise Money For Defence.

Washington, Nov. 10.—President Wilson and his advisers contemplate a special tax on munitions manufactured for export to raise funds for support of the administration program for preparedness, which is to cost $1,000,000,000.

This was shown when Secretary McAdoo, of the treasury, sent notices to all internal revenue collectors to report immediately on the volume of business done by munition plants in the respective districts over which they have charge.

These collectors know of the activities of such plants because of their investigations into the corporation tax and through export shipments.

It was stated by Secretary McAdoo that his call for information as to munition shipments in export was to supply the department with information in anticipation of a call from congress next December, when the fight will open to lay an embargo on such shipments.

But the government needs additional revenue. Charles M. Schwab, president of the Bethlehem Steel corporation, which has been supplying the allies with munitions of war, stated some time ago that should the government need additional revenues it might be wise to tax the munition makers, as they were the chief beneficiaries of the European war. He said he and other munition makers would not complain, and he is to be taken at his word.

$60,000 HERD KILLED

Owner Locked in Room and Diseased Cattle Slaughtered.

Chicago, Nov. 10.—A $60,000 herd of prize Guernsey cattle belonging to Mrs. Scott Durand, of Lake Forest, condemned to death because of foot and mouth infection, was slaughtered in sensational circumstances.

Stiff Griffin, of Lake county, armed with an order from Governor Dunne, locked Mrs. Durand and her farm hands in the pretentious farm house at the point of a rifle, she says, and read the order to her. Mrs. Durand protested that the cattle were protected by an injunction obtained Saturday in a local court, but the sheriff carried out his orders.

Talking over the telephone from her farm to a Chicago newspaper, Mrs. Durand said:

"These murderers! These anarchists!" she gasped over the telephone. "They shot my poor animals in defiance of the law, in contempt of the injunction which protected my cattle from them. It is the most anarchistic act I ever heard of."

Man Without a Country.

An Italian translation of Dr. E. E. Hale's famous story, "The Man Without a Country," has been circulated in Italy in a cheap pamphlet edition for the purpose of arousing patriotic feeling. A writer in the Christian Register, noting this fact, tells us that he once asked Doctor Hale if he really felt his great patriotic story as deeply as he made his readers feel it, and that he received a most emphatic affirmative response.

Thackeray's Secret.

Thackeray defied all rules. His wonderful eye saw everything and everybody. He lived and enjoyed life with an absolutely unimpaired and childlike zest, and his brave, simple, tender spirit endured to the end. Where other men are connoisseurs of fine flavors and delicate nuances Thackeray was a connoisseur of the broadest and biggest things of life—its pathos, its absurdity, its courage, its loyalty.

HELPFUL HINTS FOR HOUSEWIVES

Floating Bath Brush Has Rounded Cork Back.

The newest bath brush is about one-third the size of the article usually offered for the purpose. Besides its diminutive dimensions it has also other novel features. The back of the brush is made of cork, which insures that it will always be possible to locate it in the bath, and its shape is that of a hemisphere, so that it fits snugly into the palm of the hand. Altogether it is one of the most convenient brushes for the purpose that have ever been devised.

Oysters a la Creole.

Two or three dozen oysters, one tablespoonful of flour, two heaping tablespoonfuls of butter, half a cupful of oyster liquor, half a cupful of cream or milk, two teaspoonfuls of curry powder, two teaspoonfuls each of grated onion and apple and chopped chutney, salt to taste, half a cupful of rice and one of red pepper. Wash rice, throw it into a saucepan of fast boiling water, add a teaspoonful of salt. Boil the rice until tender, but do not let it break; then drain it off through colander, wash well under stream of boiling water and leave in colander over boiling water until needed. Melt butter in a saucepan. Add onion, apple, flour and curry powder. Stir over fire until flour turns light brown color; then add strained oyster liquor and milk or cream. Stir over fire until sauce boils five minutes. Add chutney and season the mixture, add oysters and heat them in sauce until they plump up, but do not boil, as it makes them leathery and indigestible. Arrange some of the rice as flat border on hot dish. Mold rest of rice in cups; then turn out and arrange them on top of rice border. Decorate top of each little mound with thin strips of red pepper. Pile oysters and sauce in center of border, arranging four oysters free from sauce in center. Serve hot as possible.

Household Hints.

Instead of using a flannel to steam velvet use a soapstone, if you have it, and see how much better and smoother the velvet will be.
Stains on mirror glasses can be removed with a flannel cloth dampened with spirits of camphor.
Better paint the pantry shelves with white enamel. It is cleaner and more lasting than paper, and it is very attractive. If you cannot do that cover shelves with white oilcloth.
Stains on flannels may be removed by applying rolls of eggs and glycerin in equal quantities. Leave for half an hour and then wash out.
A sure preventive against the ravages of carpet bugs or buffalo moths is sulphur in a very fine powder.

OUR PUBLIC FORUM

George M. Rommel

On Our Mutton and Wool Supply.

The Federal Department of Agriculture is viewing with considerable alarm the rapid decrease of our live stock, and, through its official publications, sends out warning to the American farmers. In a recent official statement, prepared by Mr. Geo. M. Rommel, Chief of the Division of Animal Husbandry, Bureau of Animal Industry, published in the Agricultural Outlook, the following appears:

"The estimates of the department for the number of sheep on farms in the United States on January 1, 1914, show a decided decrease as compared with 1912. The apparent tendency toward a decline in the number of sheep on farms has been noted for some time and has caused sheep raising on farms to be referred to as a waning industry. A word here concerning the economy of sheep and their place in agricultural practice may not be out of place.

As a farm animal per se, the sheep has many distinct advantages. The sheep is a much more economical animal to feed than the steer, returning a larger amount of gain per 100 pounds of feed eaten. When his capacity to consume roughage is considered, he is more economical than the hog. The sheep yields a double return—meat at an economical cost, and wool as a by-product—which will go far toward defraying the cost of keep.

Sheep are prolific. A farm flock which does not yield at least 100 per cent increase is very poor, indeed.

A flock of sheep on a farm will, in time, clear it of weeds, without expense to the owner, if allowed to range the lanes, the stubblefields after grain is cut, and the cornfields after the corn is full grown. As a scavenger even a goat is not more useful than a sheep.

As meat-food animals sheep have never been sufficiently appreciated in the United States. They are, however, of very great value. They must be classed, with hogs and poultry, as the most available animals to supply meat for home use on the average farm. They are readily slaughtered, the meat can be kept without difficulty, it cuts up without waste in sizes which are convenient for the average family and the meat is nutritious, wholesome and palatable when properly cooked. The healthfulness of the sheep alone gives it front rank as a meat-food animal. Sheep rarely have tuberculosis or other diseases communicable to man.

Farmers have not generally recognized the proper place of the sheep in agriculture in the settled regions. Too much importance is placed on wool. Except on the range, where land is cheap, the wool should be regarded as an incidental—a side line to help defray the cost of handling.

If only 25 per cent of the farms on which there are now no sheep should have a flock of not over twenty-five or thirty ewes, managed with reasonable care, farm revenues would not only be materially increased, but a decided step in advance would be taken towards the solution of our meat-supply problem."

KITES AID WIRELESS

Successful Experiments Made by Signal Corps.

Marked Increase in Efficiency Obtained by the Use of the Fliers—Further Tests to Be Made Along Same Line.

A series of remarkably successful and interesting experiments were conducted by the United States signal corps at the recent maneuvering in Massachusetts in maintaining a wireless aerial by means of box kites and thereby increasing the efficiency of an ordinary field wireless outfit from six to sixteen times. The tests were conducted by Samuel F. Perkins, a maker and flyer of man-lifting kites.

Favorable strong and steady winds enabled Mr. Perkins to send up a string of kites to an altitude of 1,600 feet. Messages transmitted from the set of field wireless attached to this kite-supported aerial were received 150 miles away with distinctness, although the ordinary range of the set was only 25 miles. One thing that added materially in obtaining this result was the fact that the kites flew so steadily that the aerial was always maintained at a constant altitude.

Quite as remarkable as the sending power of the wireless was its receiving quality. Messages were received with distinctness from the battleship Georgia while off Newport and from the government station at Arlington, Va., and Bermuda.

These experiments were but the first of a long series that will be conducted, and it is the belief of those who are interested in the matter that they will lead to a system by which the range of the ordinary field wireless will be materially increased. United States government and Marconi officials are following the experiments closely.—Scientific American.

Wanted—A Southerner.

He was a good-looking young negro whose clothes gave no indication that he was out of a job.

He entered the Enquirer office at the moment the staff was taking the relaxation which follows the consignment of the last edition to the press.

Said the young negro: "Kin yo' gummens tell me whether tha's a southern gentleman anywah' round heah?"

"What's the matter with a northern gentleman?" inquired the staff kiddier.

"Boss," answered the young negro, "Ah jus' got in fum Georgy. A'm hungry. 'F Ah kin fin' a gemman fum down Souf he'll help me out."

Maybe that's a new one. Possibly it's a late and neat way to make a raise. But if the young negro was on the level, and he looked it, the South received its handsomest compliment in these parts in many a day!—Buffalo Enquirer.

Another "Peach" of a Peach Story.

Brown, Bartholomew and Johnson counties all combined make this story. Mr. and Mrs. Elisha Davis live on a farm in the corner made by the three county lines. They have a peach tree on their place that has been acting in an unusual manner, and Mrs. Davis, who visited Columbus, Ind., recently brought along some proof. She had one twig from the tree on which there were 16 peaches, the combined weight was seven pounds. There was not another peach on the tree, but the one twig did nobly. Just a little distance from this tree there is another that is sending forth its second crop of peaches, and nearly all of the limbs now are full, the peaches being about the size of guinea eggs. On the Davis farm there also is a second crop of blackberries growing.—Indianapolis News.

Practicing Economy.

When the conversation turned to the subject of economy this little incident was related by Congressman Charles H. Burke of South Dakota:

Jenkins was sitting in front of the firehouse in a suburban town when a fellow-commuter came along and unloaded a dissertation on the high cost of living.

"Speaking of the high cost of living," responded Jenkins, "everything is economy down our way now. My wife is practicing it to beat the band."

"You don't mean it!" exclaimed the other. "In what way is she economizing?"

"She is economizing on my shirts," was the rejoinder of Jenkins. "She is buying me three for a dollar, so that she can get a $15 hat."—Philadelphia Telegraph.

THE PARK RANGER

His Work In Guarding Uncle Sam's National Reservations.

HE MUST BE A CLEVER SCOUT.

The Indian, who is a master of woodcraft and versed in all the arts of cunning and caution, is the model he is supposed to imitate.

"To be able to render the best service in patrolling the park ranger must be properly armed, mounted and clothed. He must feel that his weapons are superior to those in the hands of any outlaw to whom he may be opposed. His mount must be swifter and his clothing adequate to protect him against the rigors of the climate of his locality."

Thus spoke Colonel L. M. Brett, U. S. A., superintendent of the Yellowstone at a national parks conference. Colonel Brett is one of the most experienced Indian fighters in the national service.

"A park ranger about to start on his journey, in addition to his arms, horse and equipment, should have a piece of canvas with which he can make a canvas shelter effective against any weather, rations ample for the journey, cooking utensils, fieldglasses, a map of his park and contiguous territory, compass, notebook and pencil, ax, first aid packet and telephone tester. As soon as he leaves the ranger station he becomes a scout who must oppose his wits and energy against those whose life is spent in the open among the wild animals and who have taken from these animals those characteristics that we know are possessed by the fox, the coyote, the timber wolf and the mountain lion. He who rides the trail in a perfunctory and aimless manner is but a joke to such men."

"To cope with such people he must learn from the Indian, who avails himself of every sign and indication that nature or wild life can give. The Indian never places himself upon the sky line until he is thoroughly satisfied that there is nothing within the range of vision to detect him. He will lie sometimes for an hour with his head against a bush, fieldglasses to his eyes, and scan the country, and then again scan it for any sign of human life or for any movement among the wild animals which indicates the stranger in their midst."

"The scout does not remain on the trail that has been beaten by somebody else—his enemy would not be there—but he is taking advantage of every inequality of the ground, of swale and the canyons, the branches of trees along the stream banks and the shady side of every ridge, observing carefully for indications of trails, fresh signs of horse or any imprint of the foot. His eye must be so trained that even the bending of the grass would tell him a story and he would arouse his suspicion."

"He should never build a fire by daylight in the country where he has reason to believe the enemy may be lurking. At night, in some canyon or in some sheltered spot where the blaze can be seen but a few feet, he can build his small fire and cook his food for the evening and the next day. It is well for him to have enough food cooked ahead so that he can remain on the trail or in pursuit of an enemy for forty-eight hours without having to stop to cook."

"In his moments of leisure when resting he should make careful notes of all that he sees and anything out of the ordinary that he cannot understand should be carefully described so that he may present this to his superior officer on his return for interpretation. When he is called to points remote from his usual patrol route he should indicate such a journey on his map by use of his compass. He should be careful to note the condition of the animals and whenever possible to count those of the different species for the information of headquarters."

"Any indication of sickness among the animals is of the greatest importance and should be reported at once, because epidemics are almost as frequent among animals as among human beings. Interference in any way, shape, or manner with the natural formations should be reported. Dead fish on the surface of the water is a dangerous symptom and would indicate fishing by use of explosives, and generally speaking any indication that nature or any of her creatures has been disturbed should be given the closest scrutiny and reported to the officer in charge."

"Men who will lend themselves conscientiously to this work are not common, and in their training it is of the greatest importance that their faculties of observation be cultivated to the extreme limit. These men must feel a pride in the work and strive to have their section the very best patrolled one within the park. We will not get a force sufficiently educated along the lines that I have indicated unless we all unite in systematic work and instruction, which cannot be too comprehensive nor too painstaking."

He Has One, Too.

"What do you think? Her husband has a valet to wait on him hand and foot?"

"That's nothing. So has mine."

"I didn't know that."

"He's had one ever since we've been married, and I'm it."—Detroit Free Press.

A bad beginning may be retrieved and a good ending achieved. No beginning, no ending!

FEEDING IN A DAIRY

Error Made in Giving Too Much Cheap Concentrates.

Chief Problem Is to Furnish a Sufficient, and at Same Time Not Too Costly Supply of the Best Protein Foods.

(By W. M. KELLEY.)

According to accepted standards, a cow weighing one thousand pounds will require about one pound of protein a day in a maintenance ration, and one producing from thirty to forty pounds of milk a day will require from one and one-fourth to one and three-fourths pounds additional, or a total of from two and one-fourth to two and three-fourths pounds a day. Our dairy business, especially in the East, has been developed largely upon a basis of cheap protein foods; and as a result many dairymen have been buying and feeding too many protein concentrates, for the purpose of stimulating a large flow of milk.

Some dairymen are feeding each cow daily from eight to ten pounds of gluten and other highly-concentrated protein feeds; but it is my judgment that they are making a mistake and cannot obtain profitable results in the milk or by added fertility in the manure heap.

Our farm crops, clover and timothy hay, corn and other fodder, and forage, with oats, barley, wheat-bran and corn for concentrates, and a little of the more highly concentrated protein foods form an ideal combination to promote health and vitality. We may get a little less milk, but our cows will breed more regularly, and we shall have better calves.

The low percentage of protein, and the high percentage of water in corn ensilage makes it desirable to feed with it an abundance of good clover hay, which makes a better ration than either alone, but one that is far from perfect.

When feeding ensilage and clover hay, a liberal admixture of home-grown grain foods should be added to balance the ration with protein. We should make a constant effort to produce various kinds of proteinaceous forage and fodder crops.

This brings up the question of rotation of crops best suited to the feeding of the dairy cow, and I say unhesitatingly that a rotation of corn, oats and peas, and clover—three-year rotation, will prove the most efficient in a northern latitude. By this rotation, it is possible to get along with a minimum of grain foods, and that only of the highly concentrated sort, worth almost as much for fertilizer as for food.

Corn ensilage is the cheapest food for the dairy cow. Every man who has fed dairy cattle knows that succulence adds value to the cow's food, and that there is no crop that will afford this as cheaply as ensilage from well-matured corn.

The advantage of a crop of mangels or rutabagas is not so much in their nutritive value as in the fact that they furnish succulence, when the cows are being maintained on dry foods. While root crops are very generally used in England and Germany and are held in high esteem as an appetizer and conditioner in this country, their use on dairy farms is quite limited.

EASY TO TEST SEED WHEAT

Piece of Blotting Paper and Two Ordinary Plates Are All the Tools Required for Experiment.

It is a very simple matter to test seed wheat.

Take an ordinary piece of blotting paper, put it on a plate, fold it over like a book, wet it, and put in between the folds one hundred seeds. Cover over with another plate for about three days, being careful to always keep it wet. At the end of six or seven days you can tell just what percentage will grow and just how much is weak and dead.

This is worth a great deal of money to wheat growers.

TEST "ALL WOOL" BY FIRE.

To Detect Cotton Fibers Burn a Sample of the Cloth.

Until the proper labeling of textiles has been made compulsory there are certain simple tests by means of which one may determine whether an "all wool" fabric is really all wool or not. The old way of telling by feeling and looking is no longer reliable, for cotton can be made both to feel and look like wool. The only sure way is to take samples of the goods home with you and make tests of them there.

If a piece of cotton cloth is ignited it will be found to burn rather rapidly with a bright, steady flame. There is no disagreeable odor, and when the material is completely consumed there will be left only a small amount of light gray, fluffy ash. If a piece of pure wool is ignited, it will be found to burn much more slowly and with a less steady flame, emitting a characteristic, mild, hissing noise and a strong odor very similar to that of burned horn. There will be much more ash remaining than in the case of cotton, and it will be in the form of a crinkly, black, crisp ball.

In applying this test to a fabric the whole sample should not be burned at once, for if it is a so called wool piece containing considerable cotton it will be very difficult to determine whether it is burning more like cotton or wool. Threads should be taken from the sample, several each from the warp and the wool, and burned separately. With a very little practice one will be able to detect the cotton threads by the characteristic manner of burning. Sometimes it is well to pick a thread apart with a pin and test the individual fiber with the flame to determine whether the thread is entirely wool or mixed with cotton.—Jean Donaldson Martin in Moderns Magazine.

QUAINT OLD INN NAMES.

Some of the Peculiar Signs One May Read in England.

"Mad Laddie and his Mischief" is the name of an inn in the Madingley road, Cambridge, but is not stranger than many others. At Underwood, Notts, is an inn called "The Toad in the Hole," and in the neighborhood of Somerset, "The Old House at Home." Another inn at the same place is called "The Old English Gentleman."

It is a debatable point whether the sign of "The Man Loaded With Mischief" was painted by Hogarth. But it is like his satire, for it represents a man carrying a woman.

Many peculiar signs are the result of a misconception. "The Bag o' Nails" is really "The Bacchanals." "The Goat and Compasses" is an ignorant shot at the old motto, "God encompasses us," while "The George and Cannon" is a modern corruption of George Canning, who was prime minister when the inn was built.

One of the funniest of these corruptions is "The Iron Devil," a corruption of "Hirondelle" (swallow). It is said that the inn called "The Pig and Tunder Box" was originally "The Elephant and Castle," but a very poor artist was engaged to paint the sign, and somebody said it looked like a pig and tunder box, and the name stuck until it ousted the old one.

"The Plum and Feathers," an inn in Oxford, should be "Plume of Feathers," and "The Rose of the Quarter Sessions" was originally "La Rose des Quatre Saisons." One might think "The Ship and Shovel" belonged to the same category, but it does not. The reference is to Sir Cloudesley Shovel, the powder monkey who became an admiral in the reign of Queen Anne.—London Tit-Bits.

Tom Grover's Courtship

By SARAH BAXTER

"What does this mean, Lord Titewad?" asked Tom Grover, a young American multimillionaire. "You agreed to engineer my entire London society for a consideration and $25,000 placed where it would do the most good, and here I am placed in a position that should insure my banishment from any respectable social circle."

"Well, Mr. Grover, I—I—" "I would rather," the other went on angrily, "have had this happen in any other family than the Grosvenors. This check is returned by Marian Grosvenor, every inch a lady, with a note as cutting as a Saracen scimitar. I confound so much for my ruin with London society as I do for the opinion of Miss Grosvenor."

"You will not be ruined with London society on this account, Mr. Grover, for the matter will never pass beyond the Grosvenor family. I have been sending such checks to Lady Grosvenor for several years. When the note containing this one was delivered, Lady Grosvenor was out of town, and it fell into the hands of Miss Marian. As for London society, if an entrance to it can be bought, society is also interested in keeping such slips as this in the dark. But, as I have said, the Grosvenors are not likely to mention it."

"Not even Miss Marian?" "Good heavens, man, do you suppose she would publish such a matter about her own mother?"

"I must straighten the matter out with this high spirited young woman if it requires ten years and my fortune. You understand the family peculiarities better than I tell me of some favorable point of attack."

Lord Titewad spent some time in thought, during which Grover walked the floor like a fretful tiger; then the former said:

"Miss Grosvenor is much interested in the Waterloo hospital."

The American looked at him inquiringly for a few moments, then said:

"I see. That will do, Lord Titewad. You need not concern yourself any further in my introduction to London society. Had I known how you intended to work it I should have declined your proposition. I supposed you would use the funds I advanced in business operations which would bring me into contact with men of social influence."

"There is a large amount unexpended."

"Keep it. Good morning."

Grover wrote the young lady whose feelings had been injured, explaining the matter as best he could and begging her to accept the check which he made payable to her order in behalf of any good work she might select. On receipt of her reply it was evident that the lady was somewhat pleased, for she wrote that she had been much pleased to learn that Mr. Grover was not responsible for the insult that had been offered, and she had turned in his donation to the Waterloo hospital.

Grover dropped the matter for the time, but when the Christmas holidays were approaching he wrote Miss Grosvenor another note, saying that he was used to making gifts at Christmas, but being in a strange land he knew not where to bestow them and would she kindly help him out. Miss Grosvenor returned a list of two charitable institutions, a church that needed completion and the names and addresses of nine poor families in whom she took an interest. Mr. Grover enclosed a check for $5,000, a thousand each for the church and the institutions and the rest to be distributed among the poor by Miss Grosvenor according to her own sweet will.

Mr. Grover had now spent $5,000 through a girl with whom a love affair had been begun and tipped in the bud by an error. And yet he was as far from restoration as ever. Having been placed in the position of having tried to buy her acquaintance, if he asked for it now it would still look like an attempt at purchase. On the other side, the girl felt so sensitive about the revelation that her mother was keeping up the family status by such questionable means that she would not suggest a resumption of the acquaintance.

However, the barrier between them did not remain there long. On Dec. 30 he wrote Miss Grosvenor that on New Year's day in America calls were in order and if she would graciously permit him to make on her the only call he cared to make in London he would not trouble her further, for he was about to sail for home.

Grover's attempt to make Miss Grosvenor's acquaintance was a very round about and expensive one, but when he reached the last stage it was very simple. Miss Grosvenor replied that it would be very ungracious for him to leave London without giving her an opportunity to thank him for the generous gifts he had bestowed on the London poor and suffering. She would be delighted to receive him.

It cannot be expected that the meeting between the two could occur without embarrassment on both sides. Mr. Grover had the tact to make his call very short, giving some trumped up reason for haste, but begged permission to call again before his departure, when he would be less hurried, to say goodbye. It is needless to say that the request was granted, and he felt encouraged.

If Grover had any idea of an early return to America after receiving this permission, he gave it up later. He remained in England six months longer, and when he returned Marian Grosvenor went with him as his wife.
